When Sparks Fly!

by Rev. Kim Wood, Conference Minister

But Jesus said, "Someone touched me, for I noticed that power had gone out from me." Luke 8:46, NRSVUE

The recounting of the woman who reached out to touch Jesus' cloak in order to be healed is one of my favorite stories in the Bible. Found in the Gospels of Matthew, Mark, and Luke, it tells a woman who, for twelve years, had been "suffering from a flow of blood for twelve years." Scripture tells us that she had "endured much under many physicians and had spent all that she had" to find relief from her ailment. To say that she was frustrated and exhausted and desperate is probably an understatement. Many people would have given up, but faith led her in a different direction. She headed off to find Jesus.

Somehow, on that day when the crowd was pushing in on Jesus from all sides and this ailing woman was being jostled to and fro as she tried to get close enough to make some physical connection with Jesus, a miracle happened. The woman's fingers grazed the fabric of Jesus' clothing and energy flowed from Jesus to her. Jesus felt it. She felt it. Sparks flew!

This unnamed woman had borne so much agony. She had gone through so much. But, somewhere along the way, she had encountered Jesus. Maybe she had encountered him talking to a group of people. Or maybe someone else had told her about Jesus and his teachings. Or maybe she happened to be nearby as he and the disciples were walking through town that day and she just knew that she was in the presence of the Messiah, the one sent by God. Whatever it was, this woman's interaction with Jesus, anonymous as it was meant to be and quick as it was, changed her life forever.

Sometimes, I think that we get caught up in the checkpoints of ministry. Is it big enough? Is it bold enough? Is it flashy enough? Will it make a broad enough impact? In doing so, we often lose sight of the sparks that can fly in the simple connections we make with people as we share our stories, take a little time, and live out our own faith. I think about the time when my Lyft driver had received some difficult news that day and was able to let out a little of her angst on the trip from the hotel to the airport. Or the time when I saw a man stop to talk with a couple holding a sign asking for assistance as he prepared to enter the drive-thru of a restaurant who then circled back around the building to hand them a bag of food. Or the person working the admitting desk in an Emergency Room who took the time to go comfort a young woman whose parent had been brought by ambulance and was waiting for news. None of these acts played to the crowds or brought in the masses or filled the coffers. But they made a difference. For a moment, a connection was made. Sparks flew!

This ministry to which we are called as Jesus followers takes on many shapes and sizes. There are times when we're needed to be part of something big, something that takes a lot of people putting in an effort together to make ministry happen. But more times than we realize, ministry happens in little ways as we take to heart our commitment to live as God has called us to do in the way of Jesus. That, my friends, is when the sparks fly, just enough that someone else experiences the life-changing love of God. How amazing it is when we allow God to work with us and through us that someone else might experience wholeness and healing!

This Month in SEC History: October 1979

by Mike Stroud

Women in the church have recently gotten an amazing, and long overdue, amount of attention. But as recently as 50 or so years ago, during an attempt to overcome a division in traditional gender-segregated auxiliaries on the national level, there was no Conference-wide mechanism for women to share fellowship and common concerns. Until 1979.

In October of that year, a meeting of women from the four contiguous UCC conferences in the Southeast U.S. took place at a Disciples of Christ campground near Nashville. Leaders included UCC historian Barbara Brown Zikmund, two representatives of national agencies, and a stalwart of the Conference even to this day, the Rev. Joyce Myers-Brown, acting in her capacity as the regional director for the UCC Office for Church Life and Leadership.

It became the start of a tradition that extended for well over 30 years, eventually becoming an event alternating years with a Southeast Conference-only gathering. Both types would deal not only more traditional "spiritual" concerns of a devotional nature, but would at times deal head-on with issues such as domestic violence, the proposed Equal Rights Amendment to the U.S. Constitution, sexism in society and church, and use of inclusive language by the church. All in all, the gatherings, held around the territory of the four conferences and within the SEC itself, presented a more challenging, yet equally warm and loving time for renewal for hundreds of the Conference's women over many years.

The November 1979 Southeast News reported that the inaugural meeting featured "numerous workshops, sharing in small groups, role playing, singing, and finally meeting in conferences to plan for action back home. The meeting closed with celebration and communion."

For about thirty years, the women's regional and Conference-wide meetings were a much-anticipated part of the church calendar, leaving fond memories and a determination to serve God in local communities.

Stewardship Theme Materials for 2023

"Because of You, Our Church Changes Lives"

This year's stewardship theme makes the connection between donor generosity and the ministry and mission of your congregation.

Our stewardship materials this year include eight complete worship services, hymn suggestions, sermon starters from eight authors, and faith formation sessions for children, youth, and adults. Materials also provide assets such as logos, commitment cards, bulletin inserts, and letters, plus guidance for your campaign.

Training Opportunites and Conferences

Collective Healing Trauma Retreat for African American Women

The Shalom Spiritual Center is pleased to announce its 1st annual Collective Healing Trauma Retreat on November 4th from 9 a.m.- 4:30 p.m. at Central Congregation United Church of Christ at 2676 Clairmont Rd, Atlanta, GA.

The retreat will explore how our bodies respond to the scars of unprocessed trauma and how trauma's spiritual wounds manifest from one generation to the next. We will utilize a group-based process for discerning and reducing trauma energy, providing participants with the skills necessary to facilitate integration and eventual healing.

The retreat is designed for African American women who are survivors of institutional, racial, and sexual trauma.

If you are interested in participating in this retreat, please contact Rev. Salome As-Salaam at salome@shalom-centers.org or (404)-780-4275. Additional details will be provided on our website, shalom-centers.org.
